State fact sheets for grandparents and other relatives raising children

AARP, The Brookdale Foundation Group, Casey Family Programs, Child Welfare League of America, Children's Defense Fund, and Generations United have partnered to produce state and national GrandFacts fact sheets for grandparents and other relatives raising children. The state fact sheets include state-specific data and programs as well as information about foster care, public benefits, educational assistance and state laws. Visit www.grandfactsheets.org to find this and all GrandFacts state fact sheets.

Children in Foster Care

- Sometimes state child welfare agencies place children in foster care with grandparents or other relatives. This is often called “kinship care.”
- Federal law requires states to notify all known relatives within 30 days of children’s removal from their parents.

In 2010 in Illinois:

- 15,540 children in substitute care under supervision of Illinois Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS).
- Of these children, 6,371 were in kinship foster care.

Placement Policies

- Placements should be consistent with the best interest, safety and special needs of a child. This may include placement with relatives.
- There is no separate licensing program for kinship foster parents. Relatives must meet the same licensing standards and receive the same foster care payment rate as non-kin foster parents. A relative can be a non-licensed foster parent if certain safety standards are met and can receive 100% of the “standard of need” payment. The “standard of need” payment is more than a TANF child-only grant, but is lower than a foster care board payment.

- Extended Family Support Program (EFSP) provides services to kinship care families through collaboration with the probate court, the Department of Public Aid, the State Central Register and the public schools. The focus of the program is short-term, home stabilization to help relatives provide quality care. The program provides a small cash allowance and assists families in obtaining guardianship, getting public aid and enrolling in school.

Subsidized Guardianship

- Illinois is implementing the Federal Guardianship Assistance Program (GAP). GAP provides guardianship subsidies for eligible children who have been living with relatives in foster care and cannot return to their parents, and for whom adoption has been ruled out. Children receiving guardianship subsidies are in permanent placement with relatives and are no longer in foster care.
- In Illinois, the guardianship subsidy rate is the same as the state's foster care and adoption subsidy rates.
- Additional eligibility requirements include children who are living with licensed kin for at least 6 months and the home has been licensed for at least the same 6 months. Other criteria may limit eligibility so it is important that this option be discussed with the child's caseworker.
- Post-guardianship program is also available to provide resources and referrals as needed.

Public Benefits

Federal and state public benefits programs can help with income, food, healthcare, home energy, telephone and other needs for those who are eligible. Eligibility requirements vary with each public benefit and sometimes are different from state to state. Some benefits are for the family and others are for children or older adults individually. Children are often eligible for public benefits even if their caregivers do not have legal guardianship or custody. Grandparents may become eligible for benefits programs when their household size increases.

Help with Public Benefits

AARP Foundation's Benefits QuickLINK

A free and private way to find out if relatives or the children they are raising qualify for programs that pay for food, increase income and cover home and healthcare costs (listed below). It gives quick results, application forms and the address and phone number of the closest office.

Public Benefits for Older Americans:*

- Medicare Savings Programs
- Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage
- Medicare Rx Extra Help
- State Pharmaceutical Assistance programs (SPAP)
- Medicaid for Aged, Blind, and Disabled
- Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP)
- Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC)
- Low Income Home Energy Assistance (LIHEAP)
- State Property Tax Relief/Rebates
- Supplemental Security Income (SSI)
- Telephone Assistance (Link-Up and Lifeline)

Public Benefits for Families Raising Children*

- Medicaid for Children
- State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP)
- TANF-Child Only Grants
- Supplemental Security Income for Children

*Some of these programs may have age and income restrictions.

Educational Enrollment

Relative caregivers can contact their local school district's administrative office or their local school to find out how to register the child and what paperwork is needed. Caregivers may need birth records, health records or previous school records. Some states have laws that allow relative caregivers to enroll children they are raising in school. These laws are often called "education consent" laws, but may be called something else in your state.

Early Intervention, Special Education and Related Services

What you need to know:

- The Federal Individuals with Disabilities Act (IDEA) - From birth to age 21, children who have learning disabilities, physical disabilities or other special needs may be able to get special early intervention, preschool and special education services in school through the federal IDEA. Services may include speech, physical, and occupational therapies.
- Child Find – A part of the IDEA that requires states to identify, locate and evaluate children in the areas of cognitive and physical functioning, hearing and vision, speech and language and social and emotional development as early as possible. Once the Child Find evaluation team, which includes a child's caregivers, has decided if a child is eligible for early intervention or preschool special education services, an Individual Family Service Plan (IFSP; birth to three years of age) or an Individual Education Plan (IEP; three to five years of age) is developed and services begin shortly at no cost.
